Notes for Émery Médéric Blouin:

The file found in "Fichier Origine" (a web project of the "Fédération québécoise des sociétés de généalogie") notes that the earliest official comment found in a Canadian record regarding Méry in 1664 lists him as "Migrant, Catholic." Other legal records that have survived indicate:

- He took out a loan of 40 pounds from a Jesuit brother, Joseph Boursier, dated 25 Aug 1664.
- He was granted a land concession of 3 arpents (about 2 acres), situated near that of Guy Bodin on the south shore of Île d'Orléans on 2 June 1667, (Lafontaine, pg 7)
- On 18 June 1671, he sold a 4-yr old milk cow to Jean Amiot. However Jean left it with him for three years, claiming only 20 pounds of salted butter per year, and half of any profits. Should the cow die, he would be reimbursed 60 pounds.
- On 6 Feb 1680, he appeared in court, claiming reimbursement and damages from Francois Dumas, a mason, who had promised to build a chimney (fireplace) by the feast of Ste. Anne, and to whom he had advanced 25 pounds. The mason claimed the Lord of Berthelot required his services all summer and he couldn't get around to Méry's job. The judge ordered Dumas to reimburse Emery Bellouin his 25 pounds.
- On 16 Apr 1689 he appears before the notary François Rageot in Quebec to buy a piece of land from his neighbor Simon Rochon. The land was about 4½ acres bordering the St. Lawrence. It would cost him 300 pounds. Sixteen years later, on 16 Nov 1705 he appeared before the same Notary to give this land to his son Jacques.
- The Canadian census of 1681 lists "Méry (age 40) as "Emery Blouart", Marie, his wife, (age 26), living at St. Jean Île d'Orléans." It also records 5 small children and lists his valuables as one rifle, 7 head of cattle and 15 arpents of land under cultivation. (Lafontaine, pg 14)
- On 16 Nov 1705, the couple went before the notary Chambalon, at his home, where they donate to their son Jacques, the second oldest son, 2 arpents of land with frontage on the river, a choice piece of land for any colonist. It was part of Méry's original purchase made from Msgr. Laval in 1666.

Sandwiched between the two entries is the birth/baptism of Joseph-Marie Beloin. It is possible that Father Tanguay recorded the last name incorrectly during his research. Notes for Joseph-Marie Beloin:

Joseph appears in several civil records. He eventually bought the land that had been in the Racine family. On 09 January 1796 he appeared before the notary Crespín to finalize the purchase. He paid 1,000 pounds for the land, an enormous sum at the time. (Lafontaine, pg. 48). Lafontaine quotes a report from Quebec archives, which recounts that "... there were isolated graves along the road below Quebec... they were those of a number of Canadian rebels who were refused church burial by order of the government because they were too obstinate to recognize the error of their ways...during the war of 1775 they had supported the American rebels... " a crime not tolerated by the English. Among those named as rebels by the Kings commissioner were the two Joseph Belouin. His burial record, however, was located at Ste-Anne-de-Beaupré and clearly states he was interred in the parish cemetery. (Lafontaine, pg 47)

Notes for Pierre-Paul Beloin:

Around 1798, shortly after the death of their father, Joseph-Marie, Pierre-Paul and his brother Joseph-Marie began a series of joint transactions through which they bought up parcels of land at Ste. Anne de Beaupré and at the neighboring Château-Richer, QC.

On 02 Feb 1802, a Tuesday morning, according to Lafontaine, Pierre-Paul, his two brothers and his mother set out from Ste. Anne, going to Quebec (city). They were in the first of 3 sleds. The second carried his wife to be, together with her parents and godfather. The third carried several other family members. In all, 13 people were headed to the home of the notary J. M. Martineau to draw up the marriage contract, a real family affair. (Lafontaine, pg 60-61)

Pierre-Paul is listed just above his son, and referred to as "sen" (senior?) in the 1851 census of Ste. Anne, comté Montmorency, QC. He is a 75 year-old farmer and has his son and his son's family living with him. The census taker notes that they live in a sturdy single-story stone house.

Alexis, the "flying horse of the Saguenay," was an eccentric who firmly believed he was meant to be a stallion, born human by mistake. It is said that he could run faster than any horse and performed numerous superhuman feats. Author Marius Barbeau describes him as "a born simpleton . . . [who] possessed just enough sense to turn his strangeness into an asset, which he exploited to the point of becoming a celebrity." (Kingdom of Saguenay, 1936, p. 154).

Stories of Alexis's exploits have become the fabric of myth; even his real identity is in dispute. He is commonly identified as Alexis Lapointe (1860-1924), who lived at Saint-Étienne-de-la-Malbaie, Quebec.

Notes for Gilbert Langevin:

Gilbert Langevin est l'un des grands poètes du Québec. Né à La Doré au Lac Saint-Jean, le 27 avril 1938, il quitte son village natal pour faire ses études classiques chez les Rédemptoristes de Sainte-Anne-de-Beaupré, puis chez les Oblats de Jonquière, et par la suite il étudie au Collège Saint-Sulpice de Montréal. En 1960, il arrive à Montréal et l'on pourra lire ses articles dans diverses revues dont Liberté, La Barre du jour et Hobo-Québec. Il fonda les Éditions Atys ainsi que le Mouvement fraternaliste avec François Hertel. En 1979, il est récipiendaire du prix du Gouverneur Général du Canada; la bourse reçue est remise à l'organisme pour la défense des prisonniers politiques du Québec. En 1994, il avait reçu le prix Alain-Grandbois de L'Académie des lettres du Québec pour: "Le cercle ouvert."

Lorsqu'il meurt à Montréal, le 18 octobre 1995, Gilbert Langevin, a publié depuis 1959, trente-quatre livres: recueils de poèmes essentiellement, mais aussi de chansons et poèmes, mais aussi d'écrits de Zéro Legel - le plus important de ses pseudonymes-, surtout de la prose et des aphorismes. C'est dire qu'il est surtout connu et reconnu comme écrivain. Pourtant, quelques-unes de ses chansons, chantées à partir de 1968 par lui ou enregistrées par quelques grands noms d'ici, ont été et sont encore aujourd'hui très connues.

Le premier disque constitué de chansons de Langevin sera enregistré en 1969 par Pauline Julien et c'est François Cousineau qui en aura composé la musique. De 1969 à sa mort, d'autres interprètes chanteront, dans des styles musicaux bien différents, des textes de Langevin: Offenbak, Gerry Boulet, La voix que j'ai, Steve Faulkner, Le train maudit, Marjo, Celle qui va, Dan Bigras, Naufrage, Ange-animal, Jean Custeau, Les fleurs dans la ville, Ruelle de nos amours, Le blé des autres, Entre un scotch et du jazz, Pierre Flynn, Luce Dufault et bien d'autres. De plus Gilbert Langevin a laissé plus de deux cents chansons qui n'ont pas encore fait l'objet d'une composition musicale.

Entre 1959 et 1963, paraissent ses quatre premiers recueils. Plus tard, il devait être le seul poète québécois à publier une rétrospective de ses oeuvres poétiques, ORIGINES, aux Éditions du Jour.

Parallèlement à son travail de création, c'est dans les domaines de l'édition (plus officiellement) et de l'animation (plus officieusement) qu'il a oeuvré, dans plusieurs salles du circuit parallèle, à Montréal surtout, où il a présenté nombre de spectacles-récitals. Il a également fait partie d'une tournée de poètes québécois en France: Paroles du Québec, en compagnie de Yves Gabriel Brunet, Michèle Lalonde, Michel Garneau, Raoul Duguay, Gaston Miron et Paul Chamberland.

Dans un article de La Presse, Pierre Nepveu mentionne: "On a dit de lui qu'il était un pur, et c'est vrai, mais un pur énergique, fidèle à sa propre détresse, comme au dur espoir d'une lumière au bout du tunnel. Dans cette position difficile il pouvait dire, au détour d'une page de réels moments de bonheur et de beauté: un plaisir du corps, une musique, un éclair de soleil. Mais c'était vite passé, et les turbulences et les tourments revenaient."

Dans Le Devoir, Robert Lévesque parle de la poésie de Langevin comme "une poésie vive et rebelle, celle d'un écorché vif, d'une victime du mal de vivre." Jean Royer le décrit comme "un poète d'amour et de révolte. Pour lui être humain c'est être "nu-mains" et la poésie quand il la chantait il l'appelait la "poévie". La poésie était pour lui "l'exploration infinie des mots et de la parole.". Quant à Normand Baillargeon, il nous parle du poète dans ces mots: "Sa vie et son oeuvre s'inscrivaient dans un territoire où révolte et insoumission ne sont pas de vains mots, la poésie étant pour lui un moyen d'aller vers les autres."
